Nothing in British Motorsport had ever caused quite an upset as when the first Ford Galaxie raced in the U.K. "We're going to race an American Ford Galaxie. Would you like to drive it?" came the offer from Jeff Uren to Jack Sears. Sears acceptance - after much reflection - would create a partnership that would turn the tables on Jaguar's stranglehold on the British Touring Car Championship to take the title in 1963. The only previous occasion on which an American saloon had competed in British saloon events had been the previous year when Dan Gurney raced a Chevrolet Impala at Silverstone and it had looked quite promising. But it was not all pla
