The Porsche 993 is the company's internal name for the version of the Porsche 911 model manufactured and sold between late 1993 and early 1998, replacing the 964. Its discontinuation marked the end of air-cooled Porsches. Like previous and future generations of the Porsche 911, there were several variants of the car manufactured, varying in body style, drivetrains and included equipment. The Porsche 993 was replaced by the Porsche 996.

Citing cost reasons, the designer of the Porsche 993 used the doors of the Porsche 964 in the design of the Porsche 993; along with the flat-6 engines (and gearbox in 2wd variants) these are reported to be only major component
