Although perhaps best recognized for providing the basis of the AC Cobra, the AC brand, initially known as Auto Carriers Ltd, has actually been in existence since as early as 1911. Its founders, the Weller brothers, had been producing cars under their own name since 1903. Based in Thames Ditton in Surrey, the firm produced its first four wheel car in 1913 but when war broke out in Europe car production ceased and instead the firm were charged with manufacturing products useful
