Any Mini enthusiast or mechanic will tell you that whilst the oily parts are pretty bomb-proof the body can suffer with rust, sometimes quite badly. There are a number of different ways to address this state of affairs. You can invest in an angle grinder and a spare body panel catalogue, or you can replace the body entirely with a bespoke unit, giving you complete control and individuality. Domino can help you out here, as the body presented here is one of theirs and it works well. The donor vehicle, a 1979 Mini Clubman Estate was in poor condition and so was ready to accept something a little more interesting. The car was originally owned by the son of the owner of Domin
