This car is beautifully presented in gleaming red duco with contrasting black leather interior the condition of this car won't disappoint. Cosmetically, this car is virtually as-new. The paintwork is beautiful throughout. The front air-dam and bumper assembly, and indeed the balance of the exterior is free of any major (or even minor) paint imperfections. The car sits on four unmarked wheels. The window glass and lenses are also as-new in condition.

Ready to enjoy this car is a fine example of a desirable and collectable thoroughbred that will make for a sound investment. A left-hand drive Ferrari and imported from Japan the car is sold with service manual and receipts.

As the active buying population transcends to the next generation, it is cars of the 1980s and 1990s which are seeing the most rapid appreciation in today's marketplace. No-excuse, low mileage cars in impeccable condition, which have been produced in limited numbers, are of course the very best bet from an investment perspective, while remaining eminently usable and enjoyable on the road.

Debuting at the 1984 Paris Auto Show, Testarossa, which stands for 'red head' in Italian, The Testarossa is one of the most striking and most loved Ferraris'. Designed by Pininfarina they were an instant hit and sold well with a long model run from 1984 to 1996 and are now a highly sort after collector's car.

Classic Ferrari design with a flat 4.9 litre 12-cylinder mid-engine rear wheel drive and 5 speed manual layout. The 512TR was a refined and reworked version featuring revised engine components and exhaust improving peak power and a broader power curve. Cross drilled front brakes, quicker steering, suspension improvements and engine and gearbox positioning changes resulted in better handling and overall.
