- Ultimate evolution of the Range Rover Classic in an ultra-limited series
- Only 17 050 miles from new
- Very luxurious, exclusive and historic version
- No reserve

Targeted specifically for the English market, the very last version of the Range Rover Classic, one of which is the car on offer, was a part of a series limited to just 25 copies, as a tribute to the 25 years of the model in 1995, called the "25th anniversary edition". It was the ninth in this special series, and comes in the configuration specific to the special features of this limited edition: metallic "Oxford blue" color with chrome bumpers, fog lights, headlight washers, 5-spoke aluminum rims, mesh silver side decoration and "25th Edition" badge on the front fenders. The car also features beige Connolly leather upholstery with brown piping, varnished wooden inserts in the passenger compartment and a numbered plate on the central console. It was delivered new by the famous distributor of luxury vehicles "Stratstone of Mayfair" in London and registered for the first time on June 21, 1996. Its successive owners have obviously taken the necessary care since it is in very good condition. This is also explained by the fact that it displays only 17,050 miles. The car's folder shows the maintenance carried out since 2009, in particular by Graeme Hunt which have been servicing the car since this period. In 2009, with 11,697 miles on the clock, the English preparer JE Engineering also optimized the engine, for a power gain of around 20 hp, and consequently the brakes and suspension. At the end of 2019, this Range Rover also benefited from a service of the drivetrain for an amount of nearly € 3,000 at Land Rover Normandie. It is in likelihood the finest of the last Range Rover Classic "final edition".
