
All-New Jaguar XJ for July Launch

22 April 2009 | Classic Driver

Jaguar has released what can only be described as a 'glimpse' of its new XJ luxury saloon.

The new car will be officially unveiled in London on July 9th. Few details are available at present, although the British company has announced that the new car will be available in two wheelbase lengths and powered by any of the current line-up of 'Generation III' engines. These include the highly rated new V6 diesels and the 510bhp supercharged petrol V8.

The all-new XJ will go on sale later this year and is the first car to feature the next generation of Jaguar's aerospace-inspired aluminium body architecture.

Carrying on the high standards of design set by the XF, the new car will have a generous specification, including a panoramic glass roof.

For further information, including regular updates, see www.jaguar.com/allnewxj.

Text: Steve Wakefield

Photos: Jaguar

ClassicInside - The Classic Driver Newsletter

Free Subscription!

<https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/all-new-jaguar-xj-july-launch>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.