The Bentley Boutique at Geneva: 'A Celebration of Colour'

Visitors to this year's Geneva motor show will be able to browse a selection of Bentley-branded merchandise in the company's first-ever dedicated 'Bentley Boutique'.

New items will be themed around 'A Celebration of Colour' – a new-for-2010 palette of shades for not only the cars on the stands, but also the limited-edition range of small leather goods made by Robert Ettinger of London. The leather accessories include luggage tags, key fobs, passport holders and coin purses, all hand-stitched entirely in England from Bentley's own hides.

Also in the Boutique will be the 'zai for Bentley' skis Classic Driver previewed recently and a selection of Breitling watches, Tibaldi pens, safes by Stockinger and Estede eyewear – all luxury goods made under licence for the Crewe manufacturer.

Three new pen designs in the 'Tibaldi for Bentley' range will be launched at Geneva: the Supersports, the Continental Slimline and the Mulsanne. All are limited editions and range in price from 500 euros to 4500 euros.

Alongside the accessories and the company's regular Continental range will be the flagship Mulsanne and the recently announced Continental Supersports Convertible.
