

CLASSIC DRIVER

---

Porsche Promises Electric Sports Car

26 July 2010 | Classic Driver

“We will definitely be offering an electric sports car in future. But such a concept only makes sense if it offers product qualities typical of a Porsche,” says Michael Macht, President and CEO of Porsche AG.

Believing that electric drive will continue to grow in importance, Porsche is developing both hybrid concepts and all-electric cars. In the latter category, three research cars based on the Porsche Boxster are being used in a field test which will start in earnest early next year.

The plug-in hybrid, the 918 Spyder, made headlines when it debuted at Geneva this year, joining the Cayenne Hybrid and the 911 GT3 R Hybrid race car. The racer went on to prove its viability in the 2010 Nürburgring 24 Hours.

Hybrid technology will also be featured in the forthcoming Panamera S Hybrid, due to enter the market next year.

Text: Charis Whitcombe

Photos: Porsche

---

ClassicInside - The Classic Driver Newsletter

Free Subscription!

---

<https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/porsche-promises-electric-sports-car>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.