1971 Aston Martin DBR2 Recreation

Registration no. 687 EMU

Chassis no. DBS/5631/R

Engine no. 400/4674/S

Estimate: £90,000 - 120,000

Footnote:

Some years after the two original Aston Martin DBR2 works sports-racers had retired from active competition and begun to appear occasionally on the historic racing scene, an enthusiast commissioned a well respected racing car designer to recreate one of these fabulous cars, while incorporating a number of improvements. A multi-tubular spaceframe chassis was constructed, duplicating the original track and wheelbase dimensions but providing much greater torsional rigidity than the DBR2's old Lagonda V12 chassis. This was panelled in aluminium after measurements and templates were made from drawings of the original aluminium DBR2 body. These measurements were used
