At launch, two models of the F355 were available: the coupe Berlinetta, and the targa topped GTS. The F355 Spider debuted in 1995, it's Pininfarina-penned lines honed by 1,800 hours in the wind tunnel, resulting in a blend of elegant style and aerodynamic performance. For the first time on a Ferrari, the semi-automatic soft-top was powered electronically.

This 355 Spider was Purchased new in January 1997, and supplied by Maranello Concessionaires Ltd. The car has a comprehensive and complete full main dealer service history, and having now covered just over 38,000 miles it has just been subject to an annual service at Verdi Ferrari in November this year. Fitted with carbon sill covers and capristo level one exhaust system this Giallo yellow Ferrari is not to be confused with the 'incredibly average' examples that are displayed on the market today.
