In 1984 the Porsche 3.0 litre model was replaced by a new 3.2 litre car bearing the badge '911 Carrera', although it was also known as the '3.2 Carrera'. The brake discs were improved to allow them to cool more quickly and driving refinement and motor reliability were improved with an upgrade of the fuel and ignition control components to a Bosch system. A major improvement in fuel-efficiency was due to the Bosch system providing a petrol cut-off on the overrun. Power was increased to 231bhp which gave this version of the 911 a 0-60 mph time of 5.4 seconds and a top speed of 150 mph.

This right hand drive example from the first year of Carrera cabriolet production comes from a significant car collection. It is in super condition and comes with a comprehensive history from new including all books and tools.

In its current ownership what was a good original example has been transformed into a very nice example
