It was in 1965 that all Bentley and Rolls-Royce saloons became unitary-construction 4-door saloons, sold either as the Bentley T Series or Rolls-Royce Silver Shadows. Although both model types had a number of coach built variations from both James Young and HJ Mulliner Park Ward, it was the later that really caught the public eye upon its launch and was assembled and finished in London at Mulliner Park Ward.

Hand built by Mulliner in 1969, this handsome coupe is supplied with a comprehensive history file containing many bills and invoices and ownership expenditure from new which is evident in the cars overall condition. Recent work included a new gearbox in 2003, radiator in 2006 and a Harvey Bailey suspension and brake overhaul in 2007, plus new tyres and a further brake overhaul in 2009, new water pump and
