The history of the 911 can be traced back to 1956, when Porsche decided to build a four-seater that would be larger than the 356. Porsche then had no intention of replacing the 356 with this car. During the project however Ferry Porsche changed his mind. Because if the new car would be a four-seater,

Porsche would have to compete with large companies like Daimler-Benz, and that would be a tough competition for a small manufacturer like Porsche. To avoid that competition, Porsche decided the car would have to be a two-seater like the 356. The 911 however was designed to be more luxurious than the 356. It got some of the 356's styling features, but it also had a more modern
