Say 'Cobra' to any car enthusiast and you will see his pulse quicken and eyes start shining with particular brilliance. But say 'Cobra 427' and you will trigger a passionate response and a lively discussion on the outstanding performance of the greatest creation of the late Carroll Shelby. His idea to shoehorn a mighty big Ford V8 in the chassis of the lightweight and well designed AC Ace created a sports car that remains the most amazing from that era. After the 289 version (4.7-liters), Shelby continued increasing the power and size of the engine, to stay ahead of the competition that threatened to overtake him. He therefore placed, in a modified chassis and equipped with a coil-sprung suspension system, the 427 engine (7-liters) with 425bhp
