The new Mercedes-AMG GT... from the inside out 16 April 2014 | Jan Baedeker

This autumn, the new Mercedes-AMG GT will succeed the Gullwing SLS as Mercedes' flagship sports car. Prior to its full unveiling, Mercedes has teased us with pictures of the car's interior...

Not a lot is known about the new sports car from Affalterbach, just that it is 'aggressively positioned' in the market, hinting that the Porsche 911 will be a direct rival. The new interior is not too dissimilar from that of the SLS, apart from that dominant centre console – dubbed the ‘AMG Drive Unit’ – which is shaped as a V, presumably to remind you of the eight cylinders under the bonnet. We can’t wait to see what the rest of the car looks like.
