Helicopter from Goldfinger to star at Goodwood Revival

Lead

Plenty of Aston Martins have graced the Goodwood Motor Circuit over the years – but true to Lord March’s philosophy of continual self-one-upmanship, Bond fans will be treated to the rare sight of Pussy Galore’s helicopter at this year’s Revival...

The memorable machine – officially known as a Hiller UH-12E4 – will form part of the Freddie March Spirit of Aviation celebration at the 2014 Revival. It’ll mark 50 years since the chopper starred in the 1964 film, in which Miss Galore (played by Honor Blackman) flew the Hiller to Fort Knox to deliver its atomic payload. Thankfully, it will be on static display at Goodwood minus its famous cargo, allowing visitors the chance to see it up close in relative safety.
