M/Y 'Tiky' is a classic cruiser with style

14 May 2015 | Jan Baedeker

Let's be honest: the majority of superyachts currently crossing between St Tropez and Portofino are not only incredibly expensive, but also equally distasteful. This 1960s motoryacht, then, is a breath of fresh sea air...

The charmingly christened 'Tiky' was built in 1961 at the Dutch shipyard of Feadship. Equipped with three sleeping cabins, two 127HP diesel engines and an abundance of teak decking and surfacing, she's more about comfort and elegance than rapid dynamic progress. After an extensive restoration last year, the 1960s motoryacht has now been added to the Classic Driver Market in search of a new owner.
