
From a Norton and a Triumph, a Triton arises

10 September 2015 | Jan Baedeker

Traditionalists in Britain might wince at the thought of a custom Norton-Triumph chimera, but in America, they're a little less sensitive. Here, then, is a modern-day 'Triton'...

Best of Britain

While Cleveland-based bike builder Jesse Bassett from 'The Gas Box' has used the engine from a 1959 Triumph and the featherbed frame from a Norton, a number of handmade parts such as the aluminium fuel and oil tanks have also been incorporated. To Jesse, we say kudos. We can't wait to see what's next.

<https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/bikes/norton-and-triumph-triton-arises>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.