In 1973, the Cadillac continued to reign supreme as the most popular America luxury automobiles. Exquisite appointments, dozens of "niceties," spaciousness, comfort and stylishness abounds on this respected American luxury platform.

This Cadillac is a one owner car that is powered by the massive 500-cid V-8 engine and connected to an automatic transmission. Paint is presented in white with a lush red leather interior and a white power convertible top with a parade boot. The car is loaded with factory options that include: power steering, windows, brakes, seats; climate control, air conditioning, fender skirts and an AM/FM radio.

The Cadillac offered here is believed to be one of 566 examples built and displays 2,865 miles on the odometer, plus it has markings that are in keeping with those displayed at the 1973 Indianapolis 500 on the model as it was that year's honoree as "Official Pace Car."
