

CLASSIC DRIVER

Even Ferrari 512s aren't safe from London traffic wardens...

Lead

When the folks at Fiskens momentarily left a fabulous 1970 Ferrari 512 M in their quiet London mews during a routine showroom reshuffle, the last thing they expected to find upon their return was a traffic warden giving the car a parking ticket...

A stroke of bad luck

Valued at around £10m, the Ferrari prototype must be among the most valuable cars to ever receive a parking ticket in the capital. Regardless, it makes for an interesting entry in the car's history file – and we're sure Fiskens will have taken care of the fine, should you be interested in buying the car, which is incidentally listed for sale in the Classic Driver Market.

Photos: Fiskens

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/even-ferrari-512s-arent-safe-london-traffic-wardens>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.