No limits

At ground level, a city such as New York might be far too cramped for a spot of polo, but up in the skyline, space is much more generous. To promote its recently revealed ultra-slim Polo S signature model, the traditional Swiss watchmaker has shot an entertaining short clip featuring one of its most prominent ambassadors, Ryan Reynolds. In it, the realms of realism are transcended, and Manhattan's skyline is transformed into a vast – if slightly detached – polo pitch.
