

CLASSIC DRIVER

This Porsche 911 fills the dreams of our sleepless nights

10 October 2016 | Alex Easthope

Granted, in the last 12 months we've admittedly grown a little tired of the Porsche 911, currently 'the most desirable of all the classic sports cars'. Yet in the last few days, this competition-spec example has kept us up at night...

The seductive specification list for this 1965 Porsche 911 2.0 SWB would make any collector sit up and take note. It's got matching numbers, weighs just 950kg and is road-legal, making it suitable for the most important historic events, including the Tour Auto and the Le Mans Classic. The race-ready Porsche, which has previously competed in numerous rallies and even the Le Mans Classic, is now looking for a new owner. If you've got 250,000 euros kicking around, here's the car listed for sale in the Classic Driver Market.

<https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/porsche-911-fills-dreams-our-sleepless-nights>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.