Who wants to follow the crowd? By wearing a vintage watch from an unusual brand, you're not only signifying your discerning taste but also your passion for horology. Here are 10 unusual timepieces from the Classic Driver Market that those 'in the know' will truly appreciate...

If you're anything like us, the first things we look at when we're in a public place are the watches affixed to people's wrists. And while, more often than not, we'll spot a Rolex, Omega, or Tag Heuer, we particularly love seeing curious vintage pieces indicative of their wearer's genuine passion for watches. Naturally, a glance in the Classic Driver Market unearthed a plethora of charming vintage watches from lesser-known watch brands of the 1950s, '60s, and '70s. These were our 10 favourites.
