

CLASSIC DRIVER

What would you do with 28 Aston Martins and three empty hangars?

Lead

In celebration of its 104-year history and the new acquisition of three super hangars in St Athan, Wales, Aston Martin took 28 cars, worth a total of 65-million pounds, for a cheeky spin around its new facilities...

Beautiful will be...

The evolution of Aston is seen right from the off, with an A3, DB2, and DB11 being driven down a windy Welsh road by Aston Martin Racing's World Endurance Championship drivers Darren Turner and Nicki Thiim and Aston Martin Chief Engineer Matt Backer. Over the next six and a half minutes, we watch as they take some of Aston Martin's most loved models out for a tour of their new 'warehouse' — from a competitive powerslide in the V8-powered Vantages and Virage to a Bond car showdown with the DB5 and DB10 to an homage to racing with the DBR1, V8 Vantage GT3, and the Gulf-liveried LMP1 (DBR1-2). After teasing the diminutive Cygnet with the One-77 and Vulcan, the mischievous trio finds three cars under covers and, of course, they're tempted to take a sneak peek, uncovering the Aston Martin Red Bull RB 001 and the DBX Concept. But just as they're about to reveal a third car, they hear the roar of Aston Martin President and CEO Andy Palmer's blue Vanguish S and sneak out unseen, much to the security guards' dismay...

Video: Aston Martin

Gallery

Includes video

Has video

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/what-would-you-do-28-aston-martins-and-three-empty-hangars>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.