

CLASSIC DRIVER

Forget Sophia Loren - these are Italy's most voluptuous curves!

Lead

No, it's not a scene from the latest episode of Game of Thrones - for the latest issue of the cult magazine 'Curves', photographer Stefan Bogner went on an Italian odyssey from the Dolomites down to Venice, in search of the most beautiful roads the country has to offer...

Italian odyssey

For Curves return to Italy for the first time since 2013, Munich-based photographer Stefan Bogner chose perhaps the ultimate road weapon for the job: the new Porsche 991 GT3. Despite the prehistoric age of the Italian mountains, the series of sensational images demonstrates the ever-changing nature of this rugged landscape - be it the weather, temperature, or the light, the environment offers perspectives that change by the minute. From the fertile valleys close to the Adriatic to the awe-inspiring peaks of Marmolada and the Rosengarten group, you can drive for hours in Italy and never tire of its majesty.

Photos: Stefan Bogner / Curves Magazin

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/travel/forget-sophia-loren-these-are-italys-most-voluptuous-curves>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.