This handsome righthand drive 996 model Carrera 4 left the Stuttgart factory in 2002. The deep blue paintwork is complemented by Savannah Beige hide upholstery. Early 996s had a 3.4-litre engine but, being a second-generation example, this one benefits from the larger capacity 3.6-litre unit, which boasted an output of 315bhp and 273lb ft of torque. The car's comprehensive specification includes: PSM (Porsche Stability Management); Tiptronic transmission with steering wheel mounted controls; automatic speed control; rear window wiper; electrically adjustable heated front seats; leather trimmed rear seats; top-tinted windscreen; air-conditioning and CD stereo system. The vendor currently classifies the Carrera as having "very good" bodywork and paintwork, "extremely strong" flat-six engine and "excellent" interior trim. Currently displaying some 129,526 miles, RV52 XSN is offered with "fully documented service history" and current MoT to 9 October 2018.
