Description

More than a car, more than a truck - a Double-duty beauty! These were the taglines that Ford used to promote its Ranchero, produced from 1957-1979 as a luxury utility vehicle, with car-derived styling and trim - a trend soon followed by Chevrolet with its El Camino pick-up. Rancheros were built on various chassis over the years, with a total production of 508,355 units. The sale example is finished in Dark Red and hails from 1969 with power coming from a 302ci Ford Boss 5-litre V8. We are informed that a new carburettor was fitted earlier this year and that the gearbox has just been overhauled, both costing over £1,500. 'RKP 756R' is offered with a collection of invoices and old MOT certificates, V5C, original service book and is understood to possess a fresh MOT certificate by the time of sale. A really practical American classic that must be a rare sight on UK roads.
