

Everything must go at this classic car warehouse sale

20 November 2017

Jan Baedeker

In the Dutch town of Brummen, there resides the Gallery Aaldering, a classic car dealer who's decided to get a head-start on its spring cleaning and auction off nearly 170 cars. It all ends on 29 November, so be sure to get your bids in soon, as a deal or two is sure to be had...

There are very few classic car dealers that have as many cars on offer as the Gallery Aaldering, with its four-floor showroom housing more than 350 classics for sale. But that's not where the inventory ends, as there are additional warehouses filled with countless cars waiting for a new owner — many of which have not yet been offered for sale. In an effort to make more room for new inventory, the Aaldering brothers have decided to auction nearly 170 of these automobiles in a major online auction. Among the lots, which can be bid on through the Classic Car Auctions website until 20:30 on 29 November, are some on-the-button cars, as well as barn finds and restoration projections — all offered at attractive estimated prices, with many starting prices at just 1,000 euros! The entire auction catalogue can also be found in the Classic Driver Market.

Photo: Gallery Aaldering

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/everything-must-go-classic-car-warehouse-sale>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.