

CLASSIC DRIVER

Air-cooling is crucial in the searing heat of Hong Kong

Lead

Capitalising on the explosive popularity of Luftgekühlt in Los Angeles and beyond, the Porsche Club Hong Kong held its first meeting for air-cooled Porsches last weekend, and the turnout exceeded all expectations...

Unicorn hunting

Comprising such Stuttgart gems as a 356 Pre-A, a 911 Carrera 2.7 RST, an ultra-rare 993 Turbo Cabriolet, and a 964 'reimagined' by Singer (in addition to a delightful selection of rare 356s, 993s, and 964s), the first air-cooled Porsche meeting in Hong Kong — dubbed LuftHK — was a resounding success.

Following a tour of almost half the island, which started out at the Porsche showroom in Wan Chai, the procession wound up at the Hyatt Regency Hotel, Sha Tin for a group photo call. Photographer Aaron Chung was on hand to document the entire meeting, and if his wonderful images don't make you want to join the air-cooled revolution, we're not sure what will.

Photos: Aaron Chung © 2017

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/air-cooling-crucial-searing-heat-hong-kong>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.