

CLASSIC DRIVER

Into a new dimension of luxury with the Range Rover SV Coupé

Lead

Fifty years ago, Land Rover invented the luxury SUV. Now, the manufacturer is fighting against Bentley and Rolls-Royce for the title of the ultimate luxury SUV, and it may just take the top spot with its two-door Range Rover SV Coupé — it's fast, luxurious, limited, and costs almost 300,000 euros...

Only 999 examples of the new Range Rover SV Coupé will be built in Land Rover's SVO Technical Centre in Warwickshire, England — but they'll have it all. Powered by a 565hp and 700nm five-litre V8 and equipped with every conceivable luxury — from a two-tone leather interior to Sycamore wood veneer — the two-door SUV is likely to sell well despite its price tag of 240,000 GBP.

Photos: Land Rover

Gallery

