

CLASSIC DRIVER

Italdesign only built five ZeroUnos, and this one is for sale...

Lead

At the Geneva Motor Show in 2017, Italdesign emerged from the shadows and revealed the ZeroUno, a bespoke Huracán-based supercar for the most discerning of enthusiasts. It was limited to just five examples and this car, the first built, has just appeared for sale in the Classic Driver Market...

High five

While the Italdesign ZeroUno's performance is as near as makes no difference identical to the Lamborghini Huracán upon which it's based, from an aesthetic point of view, it's an entirely different animal – just check out those intricate and no doubt incredibly effective aerodynamic splitters and skirts. Sold under the Italdesign Automobili Speciali banner, just five ZeroUnos were built and this is the very first. The road-legal supercar has been listed for sale with the Belgian Classic Driver dealer Iconiccars and shows just 500km on the clock. There are few cars that can outshine a Lamborghini, but we think the ZeroUno manages it. What's more, you're certainly not going to see another one, whether you're prowling the streets of Knightsbridge or hammering around the Nürburgring.

Photos: Iconiccars

Gallery

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/italdesign-only-built-five-zero-nos-and-one-sale>
© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.