

Automobili Amos reveals the Delta Integrale Futurista at Grand Basel

02 September 2018

Jan Baedeker

The wait is finally over – on the opening day of the inaugural Grand Basel, Automobili Amos has revealed the Lancia Delta Futurista, a comprehensively redesigned ‘restomod’ Integrale that’s every bit as exquisite as we all predicted it would be...

It’s been over six months since we revealed the Italian racing driver and collector Eugenio Amos’ plans to Make Lancia Great Again with a limited edition restomod Delta Integrale. Now, on the opening day of Grand Basel, the car has finally been revealed to the world. Resplendent in Verde Brinzio, the muscular and modern-looking Delta has been entirely redesigned incorporating a wider hand-beaten aluminium body with a carbon-fibre front, comprehensively reworked mechanicals, and a gorgeous interior directly inspired by the Group B Delta S4 Stradale. In spite of this, the Futurista still manages to capture the character and spirit of the original cult-classic homologation hatchback, which was Amos’ aim all along. We’d like to wish Eugenio and his dedicated team at Automobili Amos the best of luck in their continued mission to Make Lancia Great Again. This is just the beginning – bring on the Futurista!

Photos: Automobili Amos / Video: Vladimir Jedlicka

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/cars/automobili-amos-reveals-delta-integrale-futurista-grand-basel>

© Classic Driver. All rights reserved.