

CLASSIC DRIVER

The seventies called, they want their watches back

04 October 2018
Jan Baedeker

It wasn't just automotive design that flourished in the 1970s - the watch industry, too, was just as colourful, fashionable, and experimental at that time...

While the biggest watch brands including Rolex, Omega, and Heuer all produced interesting - and, today, highly sought after - timepieces in the 1970s, it's also worth looking at the archives of lesser-known companies such as Enicar or Wakmann. The Munich-based watch specialist Meertz Worldoftime features some of rarest and most remarkable pieces of horological design in the Classic Driver Market, each of which would make the perfect counterpart to your Lamborghini Espada, Porsche 914/6, or BMW 3.0 CSL.

Colourful watch wonders from the Classic Driver Market.

Source URL: <https://www.classicdriver.com/en/article/watches/seventies-called-they-want-their-watches-back> © Classic Driver. All rights reserved.