EXTERIOR

Finished in a classic and stunning shade of Carrara White, this GT3 has been pampered by its fastidious owner and as such presents extremely well. The paint work is pristine and drapes over the wide arches and aerodynamic lines of this race bred Porsche perfectly. The low front splitter, commonly scuffed has been replaced recently and remains untouched.

INTERIOR

The interior of this comfort spec GT3 is a balance of race car tech with styling comforts, blending an extreme drivers car for predominant use on the road. Hard backed electric sports seats are trimmed in soft black leather neatly stitched with alcantara inserts.

Along with the extended Leather/Alcantara package this car also comes equipped with the extended carbon fibre interior package. This includes carbon fibre door handle surrounds, air vent surrounds, a carbon fibre handbrake & gear knob. Combined with the stitched extended leather and generous tech options it makes for one of the most complete GT3 interiors available.

ENGINE & TRANSMISSION

Any Porsche Motorsport engine has an incredible and indelible relationship to the Motorsport Department and the engine in the 997 GT3 is no different. The flat six displaces 3.6 litres and huge work went into reducing internal masses to produce a free spinning engine, equating to 409 bhp at a heady 7600 rpm. VarioCam was a new addition, adjusting the intake cam timing improving both efficiency and the spread of torque.

The resulting sonic experience is second to none further improved with a performance rear exhaust box and one every petrol head should experience. This particular example has been maintained as per Porsche recommended service schedule and done solely at the Porsche main dealers.

WHEELS, TYRES & BRAKES

The light weight alloys offset the bodywork beautifully in silver, wrapped in Pirelli P-zero tyres all round, the rears with excellent tread.

Red, Porsche in-scripted Brembo calipers clamp drilled brake discs with plenty of material on both pad and disc.
