The Ferrari FF - for 'Ferrari Four' in reference to its four seats and its four-wheel drive - is a grand tourer that was developed to replace the 612 Scaglietti, with which it shares its V12 engine, here developing 660bhp and 683 Nm (504lb ft) of torque. The FF is an unusual Ferrari for two reasons. It is the first to have a shooting-break style of body and also the first series-production Ferrari to have four-wheel drive. Unveiled at the 2011 Geneva motor show, it was thus something of a revolution for the famous 'Prancing Horse' marque, offering as it did 4wd, four proper seats and a comfortable cockpit, all while whisking its passengers to 100km/h (62mph) in just 3.7 seconds. Here at last was a genuinely versatile supercar, as the motoring press duly recognised. Production ceased in 2018, when the replacement GTC4 Lusso was introduced, using the same Pininfarina-designed coachwork. The Ferrari FF presented here is a late 2012 model with all available options, including the magnificent panoramic glass roof, option code ECRF. Equipment includes ventilated leather seats, yellow-painted brake callipers, reversing camera, premium hi-fi system...the list is a long one. The colour scheme is perfect for the car, the black paint flattering the Ferrari's subtle lines. The body is faultless and a few weeks ago received a ceramic anti-scratch treatment. Sold new in France by Charles Pozzi in Levallois-Perret, it has been regularly maintained all its life, as its service record testifies, and today has just 51,000km (31,690 miles) on the clock. In irreproachable condition, this is a formidable machine for eating up the miles in palatial comfort while revelling in the soundtrack of one of the most beguiling V12s Ferrari has produced.

This car will be sold during an auction sale organized by AGUTTES Auction House.

It will take place in Paris, at the Espace Champerret, France, on March the 17th, 2019.
