The Skoda marque from the Czech Republic is now owned by Volkswagen Groupe have been building dependable solid vehicles with origins going back to the late 1800's making them one of the 5 oldest car producers.

The Skoda 120 was a small family car based on the earlier S100/110 models essentially a face lifted progression that stayed in production from 1976 till 1990. Badged as the Estelle in the UK it was the cheapest new car available on the British car market.

Rugged and robust in design to be able to survive the poor-quality roads of Soviet-dominated Central and Eastern Europe and the harsh weather of these areas.

This example is fitted with a 1174cc 49 bhp engine and 5-speed manual transmission.

Still wearing its original olive-green paint in good condition, the interior is also original and in overall good condition with only the top of the rear seat being sun damaged.

The simplicity of these cars with a design to be able to be fixed on the side of the road and a driving experience like few others. These cars are fun to drive and in recent years have become a great collector's piece and a good investment.
