Description

PEUGEOT 406 COUPE' 2.2 (2003) CHASSIS N° VF38C3FZA81579502, ENGINE: 4 CYLINDER, DISPLACEMENT: 2230 CM3, POWER: 158 BHP, BODY: COUPE', GEARBOX: MANUAL, DRIVE: LHD, THE MOST ELEGANT PEUGEOT COUPE'

Since the beginning of the automobile, Peugeot has enjoyed a reputation for its affordable, well built and reliable cars. From the 1950s, until the end of the XX Century, Pininfarina has been responsible for their style, which gave them a unique charm. The 406 Coupé was designed by Davide Arcangeli with some details which were common with the Ferrari 456: for many enthusiasts it is the most elegant Peugeot ever. Built in Turin by Pininfarina, it originally had either a two litre engine with 132 bhp or a three litre V6 with 190 bhp, but since 2001 it could have a 2.2 litre four cylinder with 158 bhp. This car was registered in 2004 to a Peugeot official service centre, which carried out the maintenance for many years. It is a very well kept, low mileage example, with less than 18,000 miles on the odometer. This vehicle is in excellent mechanical condition but for safety reasons, we advise the purchaser to have it checked over and to replace the fluids, filters and perishable elements.
