This fantastic Porsche 911 996 GT2 Mk1 Clubsport was supplied by Porsche Hanover, Germany on the 20th December 2001. The car is totally as fresh as can be with only 18,320 km on the clock and still standing in its first coat of lacquer! The bodywork is as good as new, as are the body panels and paint finish. The same holds true for the underbody. It has a 'Speedgelb L12H' finish in combination with fire resistant black Nomex cloth upholstery. Naturally the interior trim is in immaculate order. Despite the low yearly mileage it has been perfectly dealer-maintained, as shown by the stamped service books, All other manuals including the original car wallet as well as the spare key are present. This original GT2 Clubsport is one of only 70 ever produced! One can spot a Clubsport by its roll cage, fire-resistant Nomex Recaro seats, 6-point harness seatbelts, main-charge switch and fire extinguisher. This also happens to be the most powerful 911 of the 996 series. The powerful 3.6 bi-turbo engine delivering 462 Hp without traction control to the rear wheels is certainly a wonderful driving sensation! The 996 GT2 is one of the last pure drivers cars before the digital era finally took hold of the 911! This example comes with the Porsche car document and as expected, the original, matching numbers, 3.6 engine. This really is quite a unique car with its correct provenance and low 18,315 km!
