Description

With the launch of the new 964-generation 911 in 1989, Porsche delivered perhaps the biggest upgrade to the model since its introduction, benefiting from lessons learned with the mighty 959. The new 911 Turbo was presented in 1991, retaining the 3.3-liter engine of the previous generation, but putting out 20 more horsepower. Despite the power increase, many Porsche customers wanted more. Porsche released the 964 Turbo 3.6 in January 1993, now featuring a KK K27 turbocharged version of the 3.6 litre M64 engine developing 360 PS (355 bhp / 265 kW) @ 5,500 rpm and 520 N·m (384 lb·ft) @ 4,200 rpm of torque. Produced only for model years 1993 and 1994, fewer than 1,500 3.6 Turbos were built, making it among the rarest and most sought after Porsches produced during the era. The car gained additional notoriety starring alongside Will Smith in the 1995 film Bad Boys. In recent years, it has become increasingly collectible as the ultimate expression of the original Porsche Turbo formula. Its single turbo rear wheel drive configuration gives it a thrilling and raw character that isn't present in any subsequent Porsche Turbo.

This specific car was delivered from new to its first owner in 1993 at the Porsche Centre Rome. Finished in Black "Schwarz" over black leather, it is fitted with many optionals such as the sun roof, headlight cleaning system, electrically adjustable seats, Blaupunkt "Symphony RDS". Just 3 owners from new, the car is accident free and has always been regularly maintained. Now part of an important Porsche Collection, shows less than 110.000 kms, is still fitted with its original Italian Plate and comes in perfect conditions.
