Description

Complete front end from a Spice-Ferrari 308 Carma driven during IMSA championship. This is a piece of racing history!!!

Gordon and Derek Spice formed Spice Engineering in 1984 intending to build Grand Touring Prototype race cars of their own design to compete in IMSA GT and World Sportscar Championships. Together with Ray Bellm they designed and built a competitive chassis that could be adapted for Pontiac, Buick, Acura or even Ferrari power. With backing from General Motors in 1987, they fielded a multi-car team for IMSA GT Championship's "Lights" category, including this car.
