Description

From 1969 through 1972, Aston Martin's leading model was the DBS V8. Though the body and name were shared with the six-cylinder DBS, the V8 sold for much more. The body was a modern reinterpretation of the traditional Aston Martin look, with a squared-off grille and four headlights.

This car is a full matching number DBS V8, right-hand drive, very well maintained over the years and always been carefully serviced at Rikki Can, a famous Aston Martin specialist. The engine has had a total rebuild 4 years ago. The car has no rust as a lot of work has been done through the years, door panels have been replaced.

A fantastic car to drive with!
