At the end of the Second World War, practically all motorbike manufacturers presented a large number of models, which had to be economical and reliable in order to be successful on the market. Peugeot offered a range of models, called 55s, with 125cc 2-stroke engines, 3-speed gearboxes and a tubular steel frame combined with parallelogram front suspension with central spring. Restored and presumably never used since. A general mechanical check is recommended before use.
