EXTERIOR

Finished in a timeless shade of GT Silver Metallic, the captivating curves of this very well specified GT3 look utterly superb. Having covered less than 6k miles since delivery paint work presents beautifully; thoroughly detailed by our in house team to an exceptional standard, it sits free from any discernible swirls or blemishes.

The silver paintwork is perfectly offset with black design details throughout; A matte black front spoiler and side skirts adorn the front of the car whilst at the rear of sit two huge air intakes and a rear diffuser. Other contrasting details include the optional PDLs front lights in black along with the gorgeous satin finish Platinum alloys.

INTERIOR

Considering the performance orientated design of the GT3, the interior is luxuriously finished and a comfortable place to be. Carbon bucket seats, which remain in perfect condition, are upholstered in a combination of black leather and alcantara to provide a significant weight saving whilst with incredible support and comfort at any speed. The lavish combinations of leather/ alcantara with contrast grey stitching is continued further through the interior, covering the dashboard, doors, headlining and steering wheel.

The uncompromising standard of the Porsche's interior ensures all the modern tech is still present with the inclusion of Satellite navigation system, a BOSE surround sound system, reversing camera and automatic climate control system, This example also adding a front suspension lift to its extensive spec list resulting in a GT3 that can be used comfortably everyday whilst still being blisteringly quick when the time arises

Making sure occupants don't get too complacent is the black roll cage, fitted as part of the optional Clubsport package, sits in place of the rear seats to remind the driver of the track focused design of the GT3.

ENGINE & TRANSMISSION

True to form, Porsche have stuck to a Flat-6 Engine configuration, just like they did when the first 911 was released back in 1963. Things have come a long way since then so although the configuration is the same the iteration of the famous Flat-6 in this 911 has been increased to 4.0L, which produces 493 bhp. The stand out feature of this example however, is the 6-speed manual gearbox; optioned in favour of the faster PDK alternative it offers an unparalleled level of driver engagement, with a lightweight flywheel and fast revving flat-6 creating the ultimate set up to heel and toe through the gears. Weighing 17kg less than the automatic alternative it also mean top speed increases to 199 mph.

The GT3's exhaust note is addictively characterful, more than ever before with a deep bellow produced from the naturally aspirated engine low down, increasing to a howl through the rev range and into an all out scream at the top end, all amplified through its dual pipe active exhaust.

WHEELS, TYRES & BRAKES

Subtly contrasting the coachwork above, the centre lock 20" satin Platinum alloys look superb and remain in showroom condition. These are wrapped in matching Dunlop Sport Maxx Race 2 tyres with good tread remaining all around.

The 20" wheels are necessary just to house the gigantic Porsche Ceramic Composite Brakes, an optional extra which provide unparalleled stopping power without fading in even the toughest of conditions.
