The Alfa Romeo 156 is characterized by a particularly harmonious and at the same time aggressive line, which bears the signature of Walter de Silva. The car completely abandons the angular and wedge style of the 155, in favor of a sweeter line composed of stretch lines and wide-ranging fittings, an original solution. The movement of the rear door handles has been integrated with the side windows.

The interiors also bring the same stylistic evolution as the exteriors: very soft lines characterize the entire dashboard, and two large circular elements make up the dashboard in front of the pilot.

The new steering wheel incorporates the airbag and, as an optional, can have the crown in briar.

The latest model produced in the first series was the Limited Edition which stood out not only for its metallic gray/blue color, but also for the black MOMO leather interior, leather steering wheel and knob, instrumentation with black hollows and orange digits, carbon look console, miniskirts and 16" lenticular pattern wheels (the same as the sport pack) with 205/55 R16 tires.

It was produced only in 1.9jtd and 1.8 TS engines in 2001.
