First series

When Italy country had finally left behind the WWII, there was a great need to create a family vehicle during the wellknown period named "economic boom".

The Fiat 600 responded to these problem in the best possible way.

It was so well made that, although it remained in production for a relatively short period, even today after 65 years there are traces of it.

The B segment of small cars for example that was born with the Fiat 600; those qualities of economy, comfort, pleasant style and simplicity we find today in the compact that we see every day.

The Fiat 600 was officially presented to the public on March 10, 1955 at the Geneva Motor Show and remained in production until 1969 in 2,695,197 units in Italy, to which were added another 2million manufactured abroad, for a total of almost 5millions of units produced.
