Surely this has to be one of the most iconic rally cars of all time? The Alpina A110, an absolute master design by Michelotti. This is an Alpina 110 1600 in Group 4 specification with Gitanes livery. The car is equipped with a roll cage and has correct Gothi wheels.

This example was admitted to traffic in Belgium for the first time and is in beautiful condition. The blue Alpine paintwork forms a beautiful contrast with the orange hearts of the rims. The present Gitanes livery makes it seem that the Alpine has just driven straight from the rally stage to our showroom. The body is partly made of plastic and is in very good and original condition. The blue paint has already been repainted and still looks very good. The rims have recently been repainted and are also in very good condition. The Gitanes livery has been professionally applied and looks good.

The interior in street-legal rally cars is usually very spartan. The interior in this Alpina A110 is of course not the epitome of automotive luxury, but it is equipped with beautiful carpets and well-fitting bucket seats. There is a roll cage and the dashboard is equipped with sufficient instruments to monitor all vital organs of the A110. As befits a rally car, all switches are clearly labeled. The seats offer a lot of support and fit perfectly with the rest of the interior. Race belts are available to ensure that you are absolutely secure in the seat.

The A110 is powered by a longitudinally placed 1.6 liter four-cylinder engine fitted with two twin Weber carburetors. The engine not only sounds fantastic but also runs beautifully easily through the revs. Of course, a good engine alone is not enough. A precise shifting transmission with nice short gears is what a real driver's car needs to entertain. Fortunately, that's perfect for each other. The manual transmission features five gears that are beautifully coordinated. It makes driving in the Alpine a true experience regardless of the speed. The car has good Yokohama tires all around and is equipped with a Gothi breeding set. The technology has been well maintained in recent years and while driving it is immediately noticeable that this Alpine is still in top condition.

In short, a beautiful car in a beautiful color scheme in a sublime version. This is the Alpina A110 as you would park it in the garage of your boyhood dreams, the only difference is that in this case it doesn't have to stop with dreams.
