Description

Car in excellent condition, only two owners of which the last one from 1998 to today, registered ASI. It comes in a very exclusive color combination, with Iris Blau Pearl bodywork and Gray leather interior with matching carpet. 3600cc engine with 272 hp, six-speed manual gearbox plus reverse and four-wheel drive. The car is equipped with its Service Book with all the services performed regularly and always carried out at Porsche Service Centers.

The last 911 with an air-cooled engine was the 993 series launched in September 1993. The restyling was more consistent and involved (for the first time since '63) also the plates in an evident way: the more inclined front headlights and the different cut of the rear light clusters forced Porsche to redesign the front fenders and some rear plates. Also new are the bumpers and part of the interior. The technical innovations are also relevant: new rear suspension, called "LSA", an acronym that stands for "light, stable, agile". A further technical innovation was the adoption, for the first time on a production car, of the flat bottom. which improved the car's aerodynamics and stability. The 911 series with air-cooled engine closed in 1997.
