 Gerald Genta was a Swiss watch maker who worked with a number of high end brands including Audemars Piguet and Patek Philippe. He was responsible for the design of two of their most iconic models, the Royal Oak for Audemars and the Nautilus for Patek. In 1996 he released the Arena watch, the first retrograde watch on the market with jumping hours and retrograde minutes. Both these feature on the watch being offered here, along with a date and chronograph function.
