Find your perfect rally or race car at Silverstone Auctions' upcoming sale

Lead

If getting some seat time is on your agenda for 2022, then Silverstone Auctions' first sale of the year at the RAF Museum London on March 6th is one you won't want to miss, with more rally and race cars than you can shake a stick at.

Silverstone Auctions' season opener at the RAF Museum London on March 6th is shaping up to be quite the sale for rally and racing enthusiasts, with some seriously noteworthy wheels up for auction. The standout, of course, has to be the 1985 Audi Sportquattro. An extremely accurate recreation of the 1985 Toyota Olympus Rally winning 'Group B' rally Audi Quattro SWB. Built by renowned historic Audi rally-car builder, Andy Krinks, this is as accessible as one of these rally icons is going to get. Otherwise, if you prefer asphalt to the rally stage, the 1984 BMW 635 CSI DTM car and 1982 Jaguar XJS in its Motul livery provide two excellent takes on a track weapon from the Germans and English respectively. We're just scratching the surface here, because there are plenty of equally desirable road cars being auctioned too, but take a look below at our ten favourite competition beasts.
